UNTIMELY DEATHS OF ISRAELITES TO BE INVESTIGATED

Records Show Girl Was Buried In Same Grave With Aged Woman

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., May 1. — A former woman member of the House of David, whose story, it is expected, will erect a firm foundation upon which to build the structure of evidence necessary for action against "King" Benjamin Purcell and the Israelite colony will testify before the grand jury, it was learned today.

All the intricate ruses and plans of the congregation as well as the almost unbelievable practices alleged to have been carried on behind the stone buttresses of "Shiloh" palace of Benjamin are known to her, according to authorities.

While the grand jury officials are perfecting their plans for this witness' appearance, all connected with the investigation are keyed to an intense pitch of excitement over the disclosure of another mystery death in the burial grounds of the Israelites.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—As European governments shivered to day in anticipation of bloody strife and riotous May Day demonstrations, the great mass of American workers—fully employed at good wages—went about their own business and paid no attention to troubles overseas.

The chief contributing factor to a quiet May Day, officials said, was the fact that unemployment is practically non-existent in the United States today. Labor is fully employed at higher wages than have prevailed since war time.

Surveys conducted by governmental departments disclose that actual shortage of labor exists in more than a score of states, with wage increases for all classes of workers steadily mounting.

Samuel Gompers, president of the A. F. of L. said that as far as his organization was concerned, there would be no demonstrations in the United States corresponding to those in Europe.

Official reports from all parts of the country indicate that no violence was to be expected. Secretary Davis asserted that prosperity and general contentment among the workers marks the advent of May Day in the United States.

In past years, the government's secret agents have been swamped with threats of bomb plots and other attacks upon constituted authority, but this year all has been quiet.

In a special May Day statement written for the International News Service, President Gompers said:

"The American Federation of Labor, has nothing alarming to announce for May Day. It is our hope that there may be many pleasant exercises throughout the country and that the children, young and old, will enjoy themselves around May poles and in

Dayton Whistles Will Signal Huge Plane On Long Flight

L. J. H. Macready T-2 M. G. Kelly

DAYTON, May 1.—Dayton is all set to tie down the whistles when the T-2 soars over the city, on her transcontinental flight from New York to San Diego.

Lieutenants John A. Macready and Oakley G. Kelly probably will not be able to hear the blasts but they can see the steam signalling them the "best of luck."

It is expected that the T-2 will reach Dayton in about five hours after starting from Roosevelt field on Long Island.

Announcements yesterday were to the effect that the flight would be started today.

Two weeks ago the T-2 remained in the air for 36 hours and five minutes and traveled a distance of 2,516 miles, establishing a new world record for endurance and distance.

Larynx Rules, Not Mind, Says Voice Teacher

Most Contracts Made Orally, She Says, Stressing Vocal Importance

"SWAYS AFFAIRS"

Trained Tongue Has Raised Many a Mediocre Mind to Emphasis, Claim

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 1.—A man's larynx, not his heart or mind, rules his life.

This is the theory upon which Mrs. Carroll Carr, Indianapolis specialist in vocal training, is urging the wide adoption of a system of voice development which she has evolved after years of research.

"The trained tongue has raised many a mediocre mind to emphasis," she said.

"The little larynx, with its sway over the voice, in many respects wields a mightier influence in human affairs than the brain or biceps," Mrs. Carr contended, in describing her work to International News Service.

VOICE IS IMPORTANT

"The vast majority of the contacts between people, whether business, social or personal, are vocal contacts," she explained. "The success of these contacts depends, therefore, upon the voice, and the

Boy Risks Life in Effort to Rescue a Dog

CINCINNATI, May 1.—The traditional devotion of dog for master found a fitting parallel last night when a boy risked his life for a dog, and almost lost it, tho the dog had no master.

"Pete" ran in front of a motor car at Moorman and Locust. A woman screamed, the brakes ground and from beneath the car police dragged the mongrel, dead, and a sobbing boy of six, bruised and bleeding.

"Are you hurt, Pete?" was the cry of the child, Robert Qualey, son of Thomas J. Qualey, 2552 Hackberry-st.

Walter J. Burns whose car had struck the boy and the dog, carried the youngster to General hospital and last night there were many little visitors to see the neighborhood hero who had risked his life for "Pete"—the dog had no master, but many friends.

Love is Rated Sure Path To Wedded Bliss

LOVE IS LASTING

Can Lose Money, But Devotion Should and Often Does Last Thru Life

By LUTHER A. HUSTON

LONDON, May 1. — Love, and love alone, is the best guarantee of a happy married life. In the opinion of Miss Joan Collins, noted actress and star of one of the most successful plays now being performed on the London stage.

The advice given by Dr. J. C. Gifford, a New York physician, that people should marry for money or social position—but not for love—led Miss Collins to fly to the defense of the marriage that is founded on the deepest affection. She ridiculed the idea that the bank-book should replace the wedding ring as the symbol of successful matrimony.

"The advice of Dr. Main seems reminiscent of that given by the canny old Scot to his son—only more so: 'Don't marry money but marry where money is,' Dr. Main goes one better. He says: 'Don't

SMOOTHING OF STREETS BEGUN BY CITY DEPT.

Main Street Soon To Need Asphalt Resurfacing, Says Supt. Robson

Work of reconditioning dirt and paved streets in the city had been started Tuesday by the street department force under the direction of Joseph Robson, superintendent of that department.

A number of dirt streets in the east end of town have already been graded and ditches cut, and the work will continue until all of the unpaved streets have been smoothed off, and fixed to drain properly.

During the past winter the dirt streets in many instances became almost impassable. That condition resulted in the filing of a number of petitions for new pavings.

Some of the paved streets are in poor condition also. Patching of brick streets will be started soon, and the work on asphalt paved streets will be started as soon as the outside temperature is warm enough.

Main-st, especially west of the Pennys tracks, is exceedingly rough, and a great deal of patching will have to be done on it.

In some places, according to Street Superintendent Robson, the bricks have been worn down to a thickness of less than an inch and one-half. Before many more years, he believes, the street will have to be resurfaced with asphalt.

The present brick pavement was laid nearly 25 years ago.

The street department is also constructing a large cess-pool on Denmanway to dispose of surface water. Between Oregonway and Fairway, the water on Denmanway drains to the center, and it has been overflowing on to a lot owned by Mary Lennon. The cess-pool is being dug on the opposite side of the street from her lot, between the curbstone and the fairground fence.

Water Payments for This Half Total $14,000

At the close of the time set for the semi-annual water rent payment Monday evening the receipts had reached $12,975.26, according to figures given out Tuesday by City Auditor W. H. Williams.

The last two days for payment, Saturday and Monday, the receipts ran over $1,600 each day. Saturday $1,628 was taken in and Monday $1,622.76.

A number of consumers have yet to pay the water rental. A city ordinance provides that the water may be shut off if payments are in arrears. City officials are lenient, however, if a good excuse can be shown for the delinquency.

According to Auditor Williams, there are just about 100 water meters in use in the city now. When they were first put into use, here, over 500 were installed. Many have since proved unsatisfactory and have been removed.

Some water consumers have refused to pay for sprinkling privilege rental this year, until a definite announcement concerning the sprinkling hours is made. Last year the water became low in the city reservoir, and the time was cut down to one hour morning and evening. That length of time is not sufficient, some consumers complain.

Erring Officials Quickly Get Into Jail If They Rouse Fighting Premier

Premier's Supreme

Opposition Party Members in Prison Awaiting Trial Since Upheaval

SOFIA, May 1. — "Watch your step" is the proper slogan for cabinet ministers in Bulgaria these days.

The penalty for the cabinet member who fails to watch his step is pretty certain to be arrest, with a subsequent trial that may bring either fines, imprisonment or banishment from the country.

The nemesis of erring officials in Bulgaria is Premier Alexander Stambolsky. Since Stambolsky himself left off prison garb in 1919, to don the habiliments of Prime Minister no less than forty former members of the Bulgarian Cabinet have been sent to jail. All of them are still awaiting trial.

OUTSTANDING FIGURE

Stambolsky, who is regarded as one of the most striking figures in the Balkans, is head of the peasant, or agrarian party, which controls the Bulgarian Government. He has been a leader of the party for twenty years. In 1915, when King Ferdinand entered into an alliance with the German Kaiser that brought Bulgaria into the World War on the losing side, Stambolsky openly warned the King of the danger of his course. The King's answer to the warning was to order Stambolsky jailed.

Interpretation Placed On Liquor Law. By High Court Immediately Sets Up Maze Of Complications Baffling Enforcement Organization—Lasker Says Uncle Sam's Boats Will Not Take Advantage Of Privilege Now

WASHINGTON, May 1.—The supreme court's ruling that liquor may not be barred under the law from American ships on the high seas will not result in an immediate order making government owned vessels "wet." 10,000 MINERS ON STRIKE IN PENNA.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 1. — More than 10,000 miners in this district are idle today as a result of an order from the grievance committee of the Pennsylvania & Hilsdale Coal Co. as a result of the failure of the company to adjust the strike at the Butler colliery in effect one week.

WEALTHY CLOTHING MANUFACTURER IS SWINDLERS' VICTIM

CINCINNATI, May 1. — A $24,000 swindle based on the ancient "first past the post" system is alleged by police here to have been worked in a Detroit pool room on April 1. Bookkeeper, 1165 Hopkins st., who had a wealthy clothing manufacturer as a customer, was the victim.

The case came to light last night after two weeks of inquiry which ended in the arrest of two men in the fifth apartment, 1125 Glenwood, at Walnut Hills. The two were arrested as Frank Paulson, alias Paul 44, and John J. Woodard, 16.

They denied the charge, while Bookkeeper insisted that Paulson was one of the men who swindled him in Detroit. They are held on suspicion.

Paulson admitted, according to police, that he had served a term in a New York city prison for swindling.

The case is the second of the kind here in recent weeks. March 16, William B. Jones, Westwoodland, Pa., was charged for $50,000 that he had swindled a local banker of a large sum of money.

PEACE PROSPECTS IN IRELAND ARE GROWING BRIGHT

DUBLIN, May 1. — Altho the Free State government failed to answer Eamonn DeValera's offer for an armistice and peace, reports received today showed a big decrease in Republican violence since noon yesterday. Free Staters are continuing their normal activities, rounding up Republicans, particularly in the western counties.

John Larkin, Irish Communist and labor agitator, who has just arrived here from the United States, said today:

DEVALERA NOTE IGNORED BUT VIOLENCE DECREASES AND STRIKERS GO FREE

DeValera's note was ignored but violence decreased and strikers went free.

NATIONAL DIVORCE LAW IS OPPOSED BY CINCY JUDGE

CINCINNATI, May 1. — A federal divorce law would work great hardship on many of the poor in the city, according to Judge Charles W. Hoffman, of the court of domestic relations, a nationally known authority on reform movements of that nature.

Speaking before a gathering of mothers and laymen, Judge Hoffman said that federal laws calling for uniformity might cause havoc. "We must remember," he said, "that there is a vast difference between the residents of the south and those of the north and those of the west. This is biological as well as due to environment. A national divorce law would do more harm than good."

Toledo Man Has Splendid Appetite Since Taking Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup.

"I had always been a hearty eater and couldn't understand why I should be any appetite all at once. I soon realized I had indigestion in its worst form, for after eating anything, I would fill up with gas and felt perfectly miserable. Many a time I would get so dizzy I'd have to lie off and rest. Then my nerves were so shaky I couldn't stand any kind of excitement and it was almost impossible for me to sleep at night. I felt tired and fagged out all day, and night never gave me any rest."

"I tried many things for my trouble, but it was not until I took Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup that I found permanent relief. Two bottles have fixed me up fine and my health is now as good as it ever was."

the members of the Radaslavoff cabinet imprisoned for having plunged Bulgaria into the war. Three more Cabinets subsequently were sent to prison for "having prepared and created conditions for the Balkan wars and of having failed to embrace opportunities for making peace." The members of the Radaslavoff Government are now on trial; the others still languish in jail.

INTELLIGENTSIA IN CELLS

The imprisoned cabinetiers include many of the leading men of the nation. For the most part they represent the intelligentsia in Bulgaria. Among them are Maironoff, Theodoreff, Pesheff, Lyaptcheff, Danailoff Fadencheff and others of international fame. Among them are four former premiers, four generals and war ministers and six professors of Sofia University.

Premier Stambolsky outlined his attitude toward the imprisoned ministers in a recent speech to the Sobranie. "After our party's success in stabilizing the country, both at home and abroad," he said, "we shall now turn to the fulfillment of our treaty promises and the pledge we gave for the punishment of those in our midst who brought our national disaster. We shall not follow the ghastly example of Greece, but we shall demand that he be brought to justice in the slow and regular methods of the law."

Stambolsky has been more or less impartial in his treatment of Cabinet members. Although most of his "victims" have been leaders of opposition parties he has not hesitated to discipline the members of his own Government. Three of the members of his Cabinet have been removed from office and are to be tried on indictments charging them with using the power of their position for the enhancement of their personal ends.

Third Generation is Using Syrup Pepsin

No other Laxative can replace Dr. Caldwell's in the confidence of those who use it

There are thousands of healthy, robust young men and women who have never in all their lives taken any other laxative for constipation than Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Their parents were given it by their parents; the grandparents are using it today. It is the one laxative ideally suited to all the family, safe for the little ones, effective in grownups, so compounded that elderly people, who are constantly forced to take a laxative because the intestinal muscles are weakening, find increased dosage unnecessary. This wonderful constipation remedy has been used continuously for 30 years, and over 10 million bottles are now sold annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world. The cost averages but a cent a dose. Every druggist sells it, and under a guarantee to be refunded or your money will be returned.

Millions of carefully conducted homes are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a truly healthy laxative that anyone in my family can use when constipated?" Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the answer. It will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate trial. Write me where to send it. Address: Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

Mr. J. B. Bok of Shaw, Miss. relies on it entirely to keep his children in health, and Mrs. Catherine Connolly of Jersey City, N. J., declares that not only herself but all her neighbors and friends use it to relieve troubles about the bowels. There is scarcely a day that someone in a family does not need it for constipation, flatulency, auto-intoxication, biliousness, intestinal poisoning, headaches, colic and cramps, and to break up fevers and colds.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientifically-balanced compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. The formula is on the package. As the popularity of this natural vegetable laxative increases, the public discards the harsher physics like calomel, colic in candy form, salt waters and powders. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin empties the bowels more cleanly and without any danger.

Bearded Prisoner Believed King Of Religious Colony

MARYSVILLE, O., May 1. — Pending arrival this afternoon of Michigan officials, a man, suspected of being "King" Benjamin Purnell, head of the House of David religious cult colony, Benton Harbor, Mich., is being held in the county jail here. The prisoner, who refused to talk or say who he is, tall a closely to the description of "King" Benjamin, local officials declare. He is five feet six inches tall, weighs about 163 pounds, has a long beard and appears to be very intelligent.

He came here about two months ago in an automobile bearing a Kentucky license and has been making a living by sharpening razors, scissors and knives. He had been sleeping at night in his machine which was parked alongside the state armory here. He is of a quiet disposition and has made few acquaintances.

Promptly upon his arrest here Sunday, Grand Rapids, Michigan authorities were notified. The prisoner refused to give his name. When asked whether he is Purnell, he replied that he is "Just a man" and that he is "not the man the authorities want," also admitting that he had been a member of the House of David colony.

LANSING, Mich., May 1. — Even if the bearded man held at Marysville, Ohio, should be identified as "King" Benjamin Purnell, it would mean nothing, as there is no charge against him, Attorney General Andrew B. Dougherty, of Michigan said today.

I came to make this statement, but it is true that if Purnell walked into my office right now I could do nothing but greet him with "Good morning." Despite all the suits, investigations and notoriety involving the House of David colony at Benton Harbor, nothing upon which a specific charge could be based has yet developed. So if the Marysville authorities really have found Purnell, what of it?

Dougherty appeared rather skeptical when informed that Sheriff Frank Collier, at Marysville was reported to be certain that the man held in the jail there is Purnell.

"Benjamin has been 'found' at half a dozen places since the investigation of the House of David began to attract wide attention. I understand that the colony has several missionaries throughout the country, all of whom have long hair and beards," Dougherty said. It was said only caprices in connection with suits against the House of David had been issued for Purnell and that the papers could be served only in Berrien, Mich.

DAILY NEWS LETTER

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers At Home and Abroad

By DOUGLAS G. TINSLEY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 1. — Missouri, long famed for mules and mud, will no longer be guilty of the latter after the present road construction plans of the State Highway Department, involving the expenditure of $25,000,000 on road of more than construction projects is carried through, according to chiefs of the Highway Department.

One of the model roads to be constructed in the near future will be the 256-mile highway beginning at the postoffice building in Kansas City and ending at the post office building in St. Louis. According to B. H. Piepmeyer, State Highway Engineer, 101 miles or 45 per cent of the designated mileage, has either already been completed or is under contract. The contracts for the remainder are to be let in the near future and the work rushed to completion as soon as possible.

This route will give a highway between the two chief cities of the State forty miles less than any other route between the two cities and saving $800,000 in the initial construction cost and an annual saving of $61,000 in the roadbed and $1,460,000 in annual operation costs on the roads between the two cities.

The highway follows the line of the Sni-bar road through Jackson County to the Lafayette County line, through Lafayette, Saline and Cooper counties, crossing the Missouri River at Booneville. The road skirts the southern end of Howard County, thence through Boone County and Columbia, and then passes through Callaway, Montgomery, Warren and St. Charles counties. The Missouri River is crossed at St. Charles, and the route is over the St. Charles rock road, in St. Louis County, in making the entry into St. Louis.

"Without going into details," said Engineer Piepmeyer, "it may be conservatively estimated that our cross-State highway between Kansas City and St. Louis will carry traffic averaging 2,000 vehicles a day. The average load or cargo of the vehicles will be something like 1,000 pounds. We thus see that our tonnage transported in a day's time will be 1,000 tons. For a saving of forty miles in the traveled distance there will result a saving of 40,000 ton-miles of transportation. At 10 cents per ton this means a daily saving of $4,000, or an annual saving of $1,460,000. Other daily tonnage would give proportionate results. By adding the annual saving on the roadbed of $61,000 to the annual saving of $1,524,000 per annum. The traffic gets the immediate benefit of this.

"However, this is not all the savings, as the cost of operating vehicles over the shorter route will be less. This latter economy can be readily estimated for any given daily tonnage, knowing the average cost of hauling a ton-load through a distance of one mile will be about 10 cents."

DAUGHERTY GOES BACK TO CAPITAL, RESUMES WORK

WASHINGTON, May 1. — After convalescing for two months in Florida and North Carolina, Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, who has been a very sick man since last winter, returned to Washington today to again assume his dual role as head of the department of justice and political adviser-in-chief to President Harding.

Altho the attorney general plainly showed the effects of his long illness, he told friends who greeted him at the Union Station that he was feeling greatly improved and that he was anxious to get back on the job.

When Daugherty left the capital in March to go to Florida with the president, it was necessary to carry him to the train, but today he walked unassisted to his automobile.

It will be some weeks, according to his physicians, before Daugherty will have fully recovered, but the physicians yielded to his wish that he be permitted to give personal attention to some of the more important legal problems now confronting the government.

Nearly every member of the cabinet has some question upon which he wants the advice of the attorney general but his first consideration will be to the plans of President Harding to use vessels of the U. S. navy to fight rum runners off the American coasts.

Upon his decision as to whether or not the president has authority under the constitution to declare the existence of an emergency to permit the transfer of fast sub-chasers and other small craft to the prohibition unit depends the development of the administration's campaign against liquor smuggling.

Daugherty will also "check up" with Assistant Attorney General Seymour, his records in the New York sugar exchange cases. He will take up the proposition of proceedings against the members by criminal suits.

In addition to Daugherty's numerous official duties, he will confer at the first opportunity with President Harding on plans for the 1924 campaign and the president's speaking tour thru the west.

BRUTAL MURDER OF LITTLE GIRL THOT WORK OF MADMAN

NEW YORK, May 1. — "The work of a madman or fiend," declared Dr. Manuel E. Marten today after making an autopsy following the finding of the body of eight-year-old Josephine Bruno, of Brooklyn. The body was found in the cellar of her home. The child had been attacked. Her skull had been battered against a chopping block. The body face down in the dirt of the cellar, lay sprawled with arms outstretched. The girl had been pressing all night.

Police working on the case today asserted their belief that the murder had been committed by a man who knew the girl and who was able to enter her to the cellar because she was aware he was known to the family.

Several men were arrested this morning in connection with the girl's death, questioned and let go.

Every available detective in Brooklyn was working on the case. It was the child's love for her father Emilio Bruno, that led to her death. She had insisted on waiting at the door for his return from work and while waiting, fell into the hands of the slayer.

The place of death was in a congested tenement district, inhabited largely by Italians.

The Japanese government will request the broadcasting of the findings of a special committee and permitting them to collect from subscribers for the service.

PHILLIPS WOMAN BLAMES PHOTOS FOR HER ARREST

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, May 1. — "Mrs. Jesse Carson" who is under arrest here and who has virtually confessed that she is Clara Phillips, notorious "hammer murderer" of Los Angeles declared today that she will fight extradition to the last ditch.

Mrs. Phillips was taken into custody after the International News Service correspondent showed the police a picture of Mrs. Phillips printed in a New Orleans newspaper January 21.

This same picture was shown to "Mrs. Carson" Sunday afternoon. "That is certainly a good photograph of me," exclaimed the prisoner as she gazed at it critically. She scowled and cried bitterly.

"I believe I could have gotten away if these accursed photographs had not been scattered throughout the country."

Asked if she would admit point blank that she is Clara Phillips

the woman replied:

"Certainly not."

She contradicted this denial by saying: "It may be that some people will not want me back in Los Angeles so bad as they now seem to desire it. I can probably tell things which will make it very uncomfortable and embarrassing for some people in authority. Anyhow what's the use of giving up the fight until it is over?"

The woman was asked to tell about her escape from prison where she was serving a life sentence for murder.

"Oh, that will all come out when they get Clara Phillips," she responded. "I can't say anything about that."

Dry Agent Arrested For Intoxication

CINCINNATI, May 1. — Morris Roth, 37, a state prohibition agent residing at 1554 Barton-st., was arrested last night at the cafe of John Weiler, 30, east Court-st., on a charge of having discharged fire-arms and one of intoxication.

YOUTHFUL MEDIUM IS PROVEN FRAUD

TOULOUSE, France, May 1. — Pierrot Mascaras is only a nine-year-old boy, but he once had quite a reputation as a spirit medium, much to the financial advantage of his father.

Pierrot's specialty was to lie in his bed, ostensibly going into a trance. Always, following a sufficient lapse of time, there came queer knockings, and a little bell under the bed would begin to answer questions of mere mortals in spirit language. Pierrot apparently never moved.

All went well for several weeks. Then an inquisitive reporter attended a seance. He thought he detected a hand under the bed.

Just before the next seance he managed to smear fresh black paint on the little bell.

Everything worked perfectly. The "spirits" answered as usual. But they proved to be black "spirits" for Pierrot and his father. The boy's hands, after the seance, were covered with black paint, and the exposer of the fraud revealed the source of the fraud to the others present.

Pierrot's father has gone to work.

LIVING BY THE CLOCK
UNKNOWN IN CHINA

Time Has No Value in China

If you are chronically late for engagements and tired of the hurry and bustle, in China you will find a haven. No matter how late you are, some one will be later still or relieve you of all sense of obligation by not coming at all.

"Time means nothing literally here," writes Miss Helen M. Smith, from Chentu. "No one ever lives by the clock. An event of a social nature requires the entire day. We must be on hand several hours early in order to be ready for those who vaguely thought it was in the morning as well as staying to greet those who arrive a half day later. Your guests do not mean to be rude or cause inconvenience. It is simply that they have never considered, much less experienced having and keeping several engagements on the same day."

Dinner is never served until the last guest has arrived, although she may be one, two or three hours late. "As you never have any way of guessing when they are going to appear there is nothing to do but strike a medium between an ideal promptness and a practical lateness. In this way you do not consume any more of the day than is absolutely necessary," Miss Smith continued. "If you are rash enough to have anything like a definite engagement elsewhere, it may mean making an exit before the meal is over, politely protesting your lack of interest in food or need of it."

Miss Smith has been in China for the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association for some years in the interests of Chinese women and girls. She has tremendous faith in the China of tomorrow.

coast with liquor where they can. 3—Foreign ships may not bring into American waters anything except medicinal liquor, despite the fact the laws of at least three countries, France, Italy and Spain, require steamship owners to furnish wine rations for crews. 4—Violations of these laws by foreigners render these vessels liable to seizure and confiscation by the American government—a procedure filled with undreamed of international complications. 5—Strict inspection of incoming foreign vessels at the three mile line or in port is impossible. It would take a young army to attempt it, and congress is unlikely to spend that much money. 6—The American government will of necessity have to depend largely upon the willingness of foreign steamship lines to observe the law voluntarily. 7—There will be another wet and dry fight in the next congress, maybe several of them. 8—Prohibitionists will ask congress to amend the Volstead act to make the law follow the flag and make American vessel dry the world over. 9—The government will ask congress to amend the law to exempt foreign vessels from the provisions of the act which prevents them from coming into ports with liquor under seal.

Enforcement of the law as it affects foreign vessels will not be attempted for several weeks yet. Officials said today they want to get their feet solidly on ground before getting into international difficulties. Regulations are now being drafted.

The Prairie Chapel Ladies Aid society will hold a meeting with Mrs. Ralph Nelson, Thursday afternoon, May 3, at 1:30 o'clock, rather than with Mrs. Fred Klingler, as previously planned.

AL G. BARNES MAKES GOOD HIS BOYISH BOAST AT JUMBO'S BIER

Thirty-seven years ago a farmer lad stood in the railway yards at St. Thomas, Ontario, and gazed at the huge, huddled hulk of Jumbo dead—killed by a Grand Trunk railway switch engine.

The lad was Al G. Barnes, known thruout that part of the province as "the boy horse trainer," a lad whose father had a standing forfeit of $100 posted for anyone that could produce a balky equine that young Al G. could not drive off in ten minutes.

Gazing on the dead Barnum elephant, young Barnes declared, "Some day I'll have a bigger circus than this one and I'll have a bigger elephant than Jumbo!" By-standers laughed, but there were some who gave a second thought to the lad's boast, for they had a lively respect for his way with animals.

The next year the boy took the road with a pug dog and a greyhound. His rise to the ownership and operation of the world's largest wild animal circus is the greatest individual achievement in white top history. And this year, Al G. Barnes has made good—more than this one and I'll have a bigger elephant than Jumbo!" By-standers laughed, but there were some who gave a second thought to the lad's boast, for they had a lively respect for his way with animals.

LOVE IS RATED

LAUGHS AT THEORY
"And the laughter of all the happy married lovers all the world over will drown this truly ridiculous theory."

"Don't marry for love! What advice to give to a young girl who has found the most wonderful boy in the world! What advice to give to a young man—father to a son—when all the world has been transfixed by somebody's eyes, somebody's voice, somebody's lips!"

"Marriage so far as is humanly possible must be based on something solid. Which is better, money or love? Money can be lost in a thousand ways, and if the marriage has no other sanction, what an appalling plight, then, for both parties to it. No sympathy, no gentleness—in short, no love."

"It would be cant, of course, to pretend that money has no place at all in the scheme of things. Money smoothes out many difficulties. But it cannot give us the greatest thing life has to offer; it cannot give us love."

LOVE SCORNS DISASTER
"Love, the real thing, stands four square to the world. It laughs at bank smashers, at war, at every disaster of our scheme of things. For that reason it is best to start the journey which begins with the wedding bells with love in one's luggage. True, it may be mislaid later on but generally it survives the buffeting of life's journey."

"But, after all, why bother with such theorists? They amuse a little, although such stupidities are apt to make one mad. The learned doctor may decide that love is dangerous. He may even decide to attack it like some malignant germ, with a golden serum as an antidote. Let Him! It won't make any difference. It won't do any harm."

"While he is busy explaining to his own satisfaction how very evil is this love-making, the world will go its old, old way."

SIXTH ST. THEATRE TONIGHT.
A thrilling and hugely entertaining play will come to the Sixth St. Theatre tonight, when Kilbourn Drama, Inc. present that mystery drama "Cat and the Canary." The play, it is said, is made up of chills and thrills, but an intermixture of comedy relieves the tension when nerves become too taut and thereby is the balance of entertainment held. "Cat and the Canary" is one of only three plays of this type ever to find wide popularity.

No play of recent vintage has more completely met with the approval of the public than "Cat and the Canary." The reviewers in New York and other cities raved over it, and the public flocked to the box office and held the play on Broadway for 329 performances. One of the said critics goes so far as to mark that the theatre should keep on hand an emergency supply of hair nets to replace those damaged during the performance.

The Credit Bureau

AMONG the many commendable efforts put forth by the Business Men's Association to improve local conditions none is more worthy of support than the establishment of an individual credit rating among their customers. If this movement is run fairly and systematically over a period of several years it will prove to be a wholesome financial stimulant to the entire city.

Ninety percent of our people are good pay. Perhaps five percent at any give time are perfectly honest and make a conscientious effort to meet their obligations, but thru sickness, temporary unemployment or some similar misfortune they fail to meet at least a part of their bills in a reasonable time. Five percent will cover the willfully dishonest. Yet it is the five percent which fill the books of the merchants with unpaid bills.

It is this five percent which exercises a disorganizing, confusing influence on all retail trade. Merchants who are conducting a legitimate business and are satisfied with reasonable profits are compelled to take the "dead beats" into account. In order to save themselves these bad accounts are reckoned with regularly by the merchant and it is the family that is rated as good pay that ultimately has to foot the bills of the "dead ones."

This creates an unsatisfactory condition for all merchants, for they realize before any of us the injustice of being compelled to sell goods at a slightly higher rate to honest customers in order to make good a certain percentage of losses they know they will be compelled to carry on their books. Yet without some system of credit rating it is impossible for the retailer to separate the sheep from the goats, the honest credit risk from the dishonest.

Coshocton merchants have been negligent in this respect. Other cities of the same class have their credit bureaus and they work to the advantage of the merchant and the entire 90 or 95 percent of good-pay customers. No man or woman, no matter how poor, need have any fear of this credit bureau. It is not a matter of relative wealth, but of absolute honesty, at which the merchants are trying to arrive.

Credit ratings are almost as old as the modern system of conducting business. Every merchant, every manufacturer of any consequence, is himself rated in the great mercantile agencies like Dun and Bradstreet and, like the individual, welcomes the fact, if he is honest. The local credit bureau simply undertakes to begin where Dun or Bradstreet leaves off and to carry into effect locally what these large agencies have long been doing on a national scale.

The plan itself is a wise one and a workable one, if it be properly conducted. It is doing for the ninety percent what in justice should long ago have been done for them here and our only suggestion to the merchants is to insist upon a 100 percent membership, not so much for their own protection as for the protection of the general public.

The Revival Of "Liberalism"

"LIBERALISM," the English call it—"progressivism," as our more clumsy expression runs—has seemed to be in a bad way since the war. This is easy to understand, for in times of stress there is little tolerance for the middle-of-the-road man who will neither run with the radicals nor loiter with the cave dwellers.

Lloyd George solved the problem for a time by taking his so-called liberals, bag and baggage, into the Tory camp, from which they only recently began to emerge. Colonel Roosevelt, at the time of his death, was manifestly headed toward conservatism. And in the journalistic history of the post-bellum period the merely liberal organs had a hard time to escape the charge of Bolshevism on the one hand and of reaction on the other. The brickbats flew, as they have a habit of doing, from both directions. Of course, both extremes, intolerant and suspicious as they were, were about equally illiberal.

The London Nation, commenting upon this phenomenon, concludes that "the spirit of liberalism will not die, tho its existing form may perish." "The spirit of Mussolini in Italy, the spirit of Trotsky and his colleagues in Russia, the spirit of Lloyd George in attempting a dictatorship in England, the spirit, if there be one here, which demands a coercive regulation of the intimate life of men and women by the state—all these, however little they may know it, are spirits of a torquism which has existed for centuries. Confront Mussolini with his fellow countryman Mazzini; confront Trotsky with Tolstoy; confront Lloyd George with the spirit of Gladstone or Harcourt or Campbell-Bannerman; confront even bureaucratic socialism with the ideals of Morris or Ruskin or any who believed that liberty was a precious element in man's life, and you will find a widely sundering division between those who believe in the right of the common people and those who would establish the rule of a sect over the minds and bodies of the people."

One may differ with some details of this antithesis—as, for instance, with the inclusion of Lloyd George in the same gallery with Trotsky and Mussolini—but broadly it is true to the liberal tradition. Liberalism stands etymologically and in fact for liberty. It might be expressed as the greatest degree of liberty consistent with the good of the greatest number. Any coercion by a minority, whether to put thru drastic "reforms" or to maintain the status quo, is equally against liberalism. Liberalism is peaceable, moderate, sensible, willing to fight for two or three fundamental principles, but practicing the art of compromise in non-essentials.

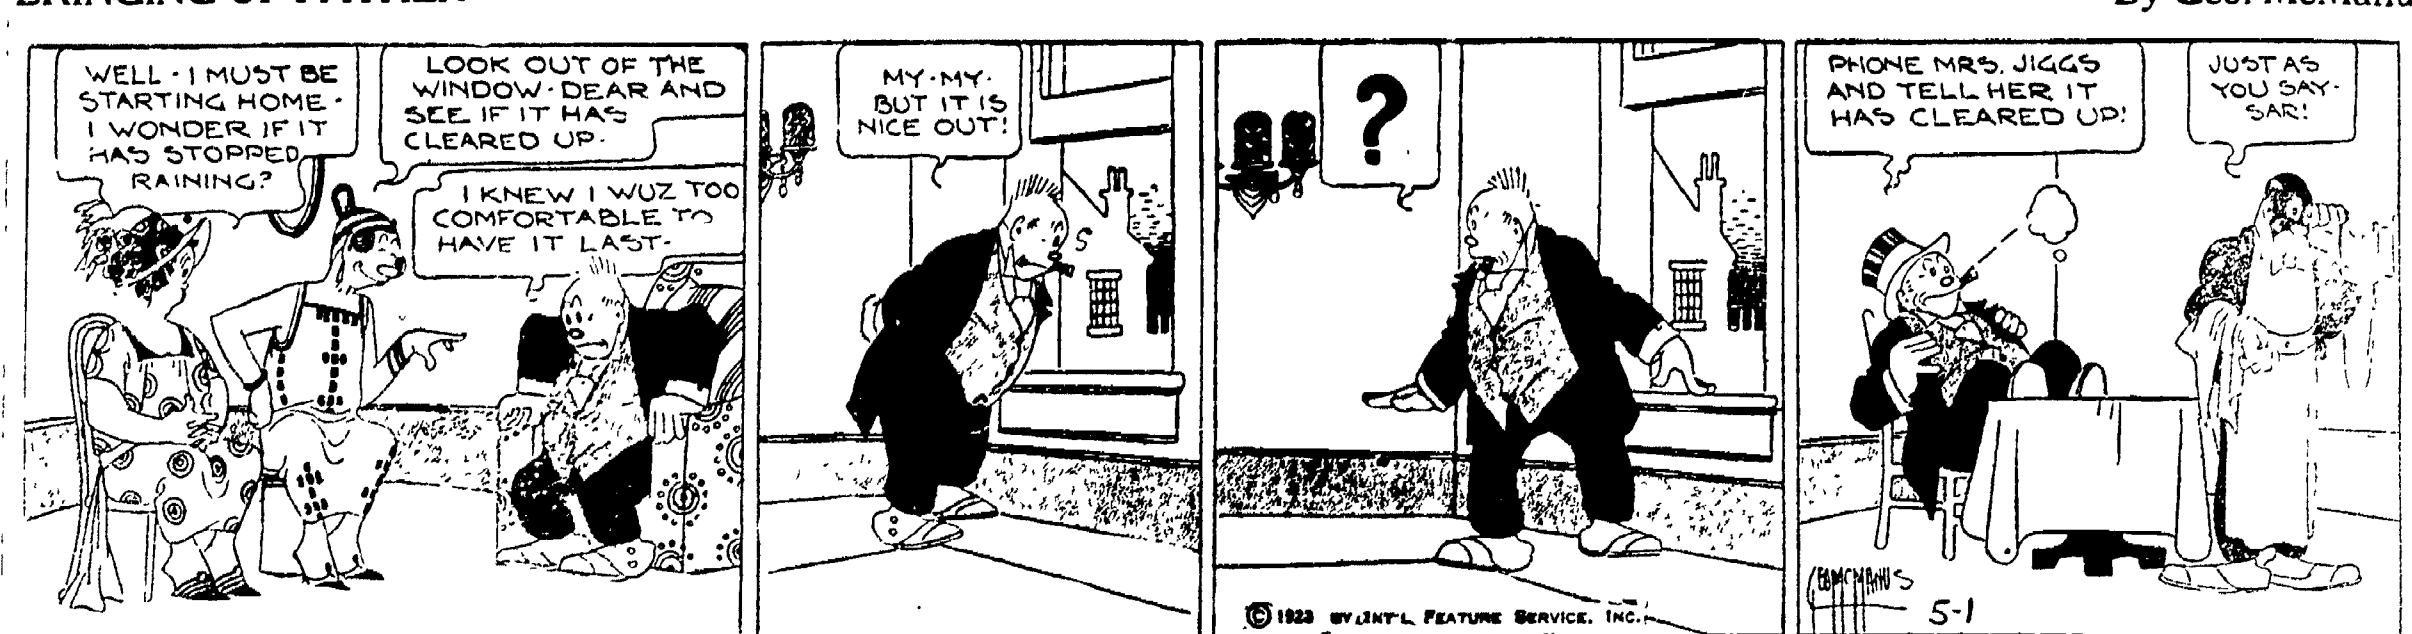

It is a scientific and practical attitude as opposed to the doctrinaire and visionary. And it is so much in tune with the minds of the men who are making the world—the best of the engineers, farmers, skilled workers, and constructive business men—that it is found to prevail against the tyranny alike of Tory and of Bolshevism.

He remained in the booth for 45 minutes, and they carried him out fainting with a napkin over his face.

Good Night Stories

By Blanche Silver
THE SILVER POOL

O H, dear," sighed Creechidy Cricket. "If I were as good-looking as my cousin, Bickety Cricket, I'd be happy."

"You mean you just think you would," laughed a merry voice, and Johnny Grasshopper hopped down beside the old little cricket. "I've often heard folks say the same thing. But just think, you have every thing you want, while poor Bickety Cricket hasn't anything. Would you change with him?"

"Sure I would, if I had the chance," replied Creechidy Cricket. "Yes, I'd give up my home and all my store of food."

"Well," laughed Johnny Grasshopper, "you are a funny little cricket. But maybe if you'd pay a visit to wise Mrs. Tumbling-bug she could tell you how to make your self beautiful." And spreading his broad wings, Johnny Grasshopper sailed through the air.

"Wise Mrs. Tumbling-bug," mused Creechidy Cricket to herself as she saw Johnny Grasshopper disappear around the bushes. Without another word she hurried to visit Mrs. Tumbling-bug's house.

"There's only one way that I know of," grumbled Mrs. Tumbling-bug, "and that is to make your wish while gazing into the silver pool."

"But where can I find such a pool?" Creechidy Cricket cried, all excited. She had a funny notion that Mrs. Tumbling-bug was making fun of her. "I have never seen a silver pool."

"Go out when the moon hangs high to-night and turn around three times and you'll see one," said Mrs. Tumbling-bug.

Creechidy Cricket went home and when the sun went down she went out and sat by the old stump near her house.

The moon came up like a great big ball of silver and when it was sailing high in the heavens, Creechidy Cricket turned around three times with her eyes closed. When she opened them again the pool not far from her house sparkled like silver in the moonlight.

Creechidy Cricket ran over to its bank and peered into the water and wished out loud that she might be beautiful.

A rustle sounded at her side and before Creechidy Cricket knew what was going on something hit her from the back and over into the water she went, head first.

Such scrambling and wiggling! She surely would have drowned if Mrs. Tumbling-bug hadn't reached in with a weed and dragged her back to shore.

Mrs. Tumbling-bug had been rolling her dirt ball home when it hit the top of the hill and rolled down, knocking Creechidy Cricket into the water.

"Well, maybe the wash will make you better-looking," she laughed after drying Creechidy Cricket's little gown.

Creechidy Cricket glanced at her reflection in the silver pool and for the first time in her life she looked pretty. "It's all in the way a person thinks, whether she's good-looking or not," Mrs. Tumbling-bug continued. "Right now you're good-looking because you're smiling. Keep on smiling. A happy face makes a pretty one." And away she hurried to make another dirt ball.

Creechidy Cricket tried her receipt, and before long folks declared she was far better-looking than her cousin.

Why Midge Felt She Must Hide Mrs. Marks from Dicky.

MRS. MARKS opened her bathroom door promptly and noiselessly, and after drawing me inside, shut and locked it again as silently. I looked at her in astonishment and no little anger, for despite the pain I was suffering, I was beginning to realize the audacity of the woman in hiding in my kitchen, and frightening me in the way she had done.

But one look at the strained, frightened expression in her china-blue eyes, and the grayish pallor which showed wherever her mask of rouge and powder would permit it, banished my anger. Here was a soul in some straits of some kind, and it did not behoove me to add to her burden.

"Say, you're white, dearie, I'll say that for you." Her voice was still subdued to the low whisper she had used in the kitchen, and I noticed that her eyes and ears were strained in that direction. "I never was so near passing out in my life as when I saw you headed for your kitchen, and knew you'd scream if you saw me." Says with a sudden jerk of her head toward the door in our apartment—"can your husband hear me? He ain't like you, dearie, he don't like yours truly one—little—bit, and he'll raise the old Harry if he knows I'm in here."

"He won't hear you, if you keep your voice low," I whispered back steadily. "But—I am ill, and I must get back to bed as quickly as I can."

"You poor kid!" Her eyes took in for the first time my hot water bottle. "What's the trouble?"

"Nervous indigestion," I replied shortly.

"You're Awful Good."

"Ain't that fierce?" she responded. "You can't tell nothing to me. I've had things. I've had it. You ought to have a mustard poultice."

"I have one and have taken all the remedies," I returned.

"Well," she returned competently. "You don't want to listen to no spiel of mine now. But when your husband and mine are gone tomorrow I'll come in and explain everything. But, please, will you let me stay in your kitchen a while longer? I won't hurt nothing, and you don't know what it means to me."

The mustard poultice was beginning to "draw," and the pain in my chest was not yet conquered. Between the

Advice to Girls

By ANNE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE.

I am a girl 18 years old, and have always been taught by my mother that it is wrong for a girl to ask a man to walk home with her. I met a young man the other night and he acted as if he wanted to walk home with me, but didn't like the asking for I know if my mother found out I would get a good scolding.

I have a young man friend in another town who writes to me. He told me he would come down to spend Christmas vacation with me. He did not come, and has not written to me since. This is the second time he has written me a false hood. Should I wait and see whether he will write?

Would it be wrong for me to write and ask him why he didn't keep his word? ANXIOUS READER.

ANXIOUS READER: It is perfectly correct to ask a young man to call on you, provided your mother gives you permission to do so, but it is not correct to ask him to take you home. Wait until you hear from the other young man before you write to him.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Gossamer Kumble

WEDNESDAY, MAY 2

This may be set down as a rather unimportant day, judging by the planetary daily motions. There may be some difficulties in connection with letters, contracts or other writings and there may be trivial disappointments, but these should not be taken too seriously. In the realm of social, affectional and domestic matters there may be much activity, with more than the usual degree of harmony and pleasure. Young people are especially blessed this day by the gracious Venus—the Love Star.

Those whose birthday it is may not have a very important year in business, as they may find their energies concentrated upon home affairs. They should be careful with all papers and contracts, as, meaning, these cautiously, a child born on this day will be kindly, lovable and popular, but may not be entirely dependable unless strictly trained.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT A Wise Judge's Sentence

Copyright, 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

JUDGE WARNER of the San Bernardino County Superior Court gave a strange sentence out in California the other day.

He had a boy up before him to be sentenced. The boy had been passing worthless checks—and he was slated to go to prison.

But the judge when he pronounced sentence on him said that he thought there was good in the lad and that he intended to give him a chance.

"First, you must help the officers to trap the leader of the gang of forgers," he said. "Then you must pay back to your mother the money she has spent for attorneys for you. And then you must repay your sister the money she has paid out to help you in this trouble. And after that I'll give you five years to pay off the mortgage on your mother's home—I will put you on probation now and I want you to report to me at a stated period and tell me just how far you have gone in serving this sentence."

The Mortgage—What an Idea!

That boy may think he has friends somewhere in the world—but he never really had a friend till he stood before this judge and got that sentence.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in the Lives of Famous Women

By MARK STUYVESANT

A Glimpse Into the Life of One Good Woman Louis XIV. Knew

FRANCOISE D'AUVERGNE, known to history as Mme. de Maintenon, was born in prison.

It is not known whether it was her father's interest in the Huguenots, or for gambling, that he and his wife were imprisoned. But it was during their incarceration that the baby Francoise was born to the world.

Shortly after her birth powerful friends successfully used their influence to have the d'Auvergne family released. Immediately upon being freed they hastened to the island of Martinique. But while there d'Auvergne lost what little money he had left.

Francoise returned to France when she was 10 years old. Then followed years of strenuous living and intense education provided by relatives. At this time Scarron, the deformed poet and satirist, was the vogue at the court of France. It was here that he met the charming Francoise d'Auvergne. Being much attracted by her beauty and feeling a strong compassion for her poverty, he made her two offers. He suggested that he pay all of her expenses at a convent or that he would marry her.

Francoise chose the latter. He was repaid by her sincere devotion during the few years which he lived. And she benefited greatly by the attention with which the brilliant mind of France was turned to her.

Mme. de Maintenon was at the time of Scarron's death the favorite of Louis XIV. It was she who obtained a small pension for the young widow.

Mme. Scarron soon cancelled her obligation to the King's mistress.

About this time Mme. de Montespan became the mother of a child by the King. Mme. Scarron's charge of the baby and brought up not only the first but several others of the favorite's children in secrecy.

It was in this way that the King met Mme. Scarron. He had the highest regard for her and appreciated her unselfish devotion to his children.

Her pension was increased to such a degree that she was able to purchase the estate of Maintenon, from which she took the name which identifies her.

Although Mme. de Montespan was extremely jealous of Mme. de Maintenon, it was purely an intellectual attraction which the latter had for the King. There was never the slightest hint of passion connected with the splendid woman.

In fact, Mme. de Maintenon tried to interest the King in giving up his profligate life.

When the Queen died Louis was 46. Mme. de Maintenon was 52. They were soon married and spent the rest of their days in an admirable life of civic and religious activity.

In 1715 Louis died. His wife, who was 80 years old, retired to a home in St. Germain, which she and the King had founded for the girls of the nobility. It was only here that a good woman lived a real mother in a family of aristocrats. She was not here, but she had exercised a splendid influence over a monarch, an influence for the good both of the state and the church.

YOUR HEALTH

How to Make Health and Not Disease, Contagious

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

WHY do we not make health contagious? We could do it if we would catch the good habits and life-giving practices of those we meet.

In every office and every schoolroom, in every group in life, there is at least one person who has abounding health. Red cheeks, ruby lips, bright eyes, firm muscles, elastic step, uplifted head, erect figure and tireless energy—these are the signs of health and vigor which we should try to get.

Evil associations are supposed to corrupt good manners. Why is it that goodness does not have an equal appeal and follow naturally from contact with well-doing persons?

After running the bathtub half full of hot water, have you ever noticed how much cold water it takes to cool it down to a bearable temperature? Yet when a cold tub is drawn, a very little hot water will lift the temperature to the desired degree.

Goodness may be compared to cold water and bad habits to hot. While in reality they are equal in effect, the latter seems to dominate. So it seems easier to catch badness than it does to get goodness.

Everybody knows that many diseases are contagious and they are avoided on this account. I wish we might look upon health as contagious and then proceed to expose everybody to its beneficial effects.

More than ever before there is popular interest in health-giving practices. Thousands of phonographic records, inscribed with directions for exercising, have been distributed in this country. Books on health, daily health articles, public lectures on how to live, health centers, baby welfare stations, welfare work in factories, governmental health departments and a thousand and one other agencies for physical uplift—all these have contributed to good health.

No matter how poor you may be, no matter what you may lack in initiative, you have it in your power to learn how to live. There is no better way than to select one of your friends or acquaintances who gives evidence of following the rules of right living, and then imitate his manner of life.

In a way this is dangerous advice. There are many people in the world who violate all the conventional rules of hygiene and yet, because they inherited powerful constitutions, appear strong and vigorous. There is an occasional man who can chew tobacco, smoke a nicotine-soaked pipe of ancient lineage, drink oceans of "hokey" alep with the windows shut, never take a bath, eat tons of indigestible food and never exercise, and in spite of all these vile habits may be the picture of perfect health.

This apparent physical prosperity in the face of selfish indulgence must not tempt you. Any one who lives such a life will be called in judgment, never later, by his own body. The day of reckoning may be postponed, but it will surely come. Don't be misled by such an example.

value of a trained voice is at once apparent.

"The chief outlet for that, except in the isolated case of writers, is the voice," she continued. "An unusual brain may flower unknown behind a mute mouth but a train of troubles arise from mis-understandings and as many of these mis-understandings result from faulty vocal contacts, the troubles of the country could be reduced by vocal training, Mrs. Carr suggested.

SHOULD BE TAUGHT

"Voice development should be given a place as a major study in all schools," she maintained. "Children should begin to learn the use of their voices when they learn their A. B. C's. They should be taught breathing, diction, a knowledge of time and rhythm, an understanding of the value of vowels and consonants and mental and physical poise in speaking as an essential part of their equipment for life."

Mrs. Carr's system provided for the development of the vocal forces of young America thru training in singing. Her work in this direction has been declared "unique" and "far reaching" by Indiana musical authorities.

TODAY I AM REAL WELL

So Writes Woman After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Jamestown, N.Y. — "I was nervous, easily excited and discouraged and had no ambition. Part of the time I was not able to sit up as I suffered with pains in my back and with weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, both the liquid and tablet forms, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash for inflammation. Today I am real well and run a rooming house and do the work. I recommend your medicine to every woman who complains, and you may use my letter to help any one else. I am passing through the Change of Life now and I keep the Vegetable Compound in the house, ready to take when I feel the need of it." — Mrs. ALICE D. DAVIS, 203 W. Second St., Jamestown, N.Y.

Often a slight derangement may cause a general upset condition of the whole system, indicated by such symptoms as nervousness, backache, lack of ambition and general weakness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine for such troubles. In many cases it has removed the cause of the trouble.

TAGGING THE BASES

Sometimes the dam breaks and then we have a Johnstown flood; sometimes it is merely a base hit in a pinch. Meusel opened the sixth inning at Washington with a homer to center and before the dust settled the Yankees ran up a football score of 17 to 4 on the Senators.

Glittering support by the Cincinnati infield carried Rixey to a 6 to 4 decision over the Chicago Cubs, four double plays ruining the Killifer entry.

Stanley Coveleskie finally was scored upon in the ninth after pitching 27 scoreless innings, but he beat the Tigers nevertheless 4 to 2.

The hitting of Hauser and Miller gave the Athletics a 4 to 2 victory over the Red Sox after eleven innings, Naylor outlasting Ferguson in a pitchers' duel.

The Braves made merry at the expense of Head, Grant and Belts and beat the Phillies to a rich, white froth, 13 to 3. Powell had a homer, a double and two singles.

McQuillan had slightly the better of Reuther in the box and the Giants scored another victory over the hapless Dodgers, 4 to 3. Kelly's triple in the sixth producing the winning run.

The punch drunk White Sox tossed another time to the Browns 7 to 3. Shocker received excellent support, while errors kept Faber in embarrassing situations.

Four in a row for the Cardinals. They took another fall out of the Pirates 7 to 5, rushing Boehler to the showers in the third and continuing the assault against Carlson. Blades got his fourth homer in the eighth.

"The American labor movement is not a movement given to hysteria or to the celebration of purely hysterical and emotional rites and symbolisms."

"May Day for us is May first, except that the day has certain pleasurable connotations."

"If there should happen to be a strike somewhere on May 1 that would be because economic conditions shaped themselves so."

ROME, May 1—Steel and iron workers in the Milan industrial district quit work today to take part in May Day celebrations. Fascist national guardsmen were on riot duty.

BERLIN, May 1—German May Day activities generally took the form of anti-French demonstrations. Serious trouble was feared in Bavaria, where both the Fascist, national Socialists, and Communists defied the government's injunction against demonstrations.

LONDON, May 1—May Day passed quietly in England although there was a demonstration in Hyde Park, near Buckingham Palace. Communists held a big parade, but it was under police supervision. There was a demonstration in front of the Japanese embassy in protest against the Japanese policy towards Russia but it passed off quietly, owing to the large number of policemen on duty.

MADRID, May 1—Syndicalists staged a huge parade at Barcelona today. Minor clashes were reported in which demonstrators were injured.

PARIS, May 1—All the soldiers in Paris were confined to their barracks today for emergency in event of May Day riots. Extra precautions had been taken by police. All factories were idle and the workers concentrated at various places where speeches were made. All the taxicab drivers quit for the day. Otherwise transportation was normal except for a ten minute "strike" by the tramway and motor bus drivers.
